Applause at Mid-Summer Heat.

The Fire Singing and Acting a Guarantee for Crowded Houses Hereafter.

After so many disappointments in opera the public is at last in touch with a really good opera company. The New York Opera Company opened the present season on last Saturday evening in II Trovatore. The house was crowded. The audience was a fashionable one, and if there was somewhat of ecolness manifested in the first and second acts, the reception the singers received in the last three acts made ample amends.

Il Trovatore is a realistic opera. Its scope and capabilities are of the finest, and the company now engag-ing the attention of the Honolulu public have not only done well in placing this difficult opera before them, but they have done very well.

The present company comes to us under the disadvantages entailed by operatic failures in the post, and this fact, once stated, will go far to extend the favorable impression made last Saturday and to place the singers upon more familiar acquaintance with our theatre-goers bereafter. We have all the prejudices of isolation around us, but our Honolulu audiences have never yet failed to respond to merit, as is amply proven in the reception accorded. Il Trova-

MESSES, A. G. Silva & Co., Hotel In the presentation of the opera on Saturday night the company labored under scenic difficulties, which it is impossible to overcome here, but outside of this they gave a performance such as has been never before witnessed in Honolulu, in which the general average of singing was high and the acting, with one or two exceptions, was above the average.

Miss Camille Mouri, who took the part of Leonora, did some excellent singing and, at times, some superb acting. During the first and second acts she hardly did herself justice, but for this the audience was as much to blame as the soprano. Miss new merchandise today. Miss Fannie Myers sustained a most difficult part in a most creditable manner, and her rendition of Azucena, the gypsy, was as fine a ard on the Palace goes up, also the piece of operatic acting and singing, of its kind, as has ever been witnessed in Honofulu. Miss Myers has THE Court on Kanai made good in Honolulu to an extent that much won the appreciation of music lovers will be expected from her hereafter.

Mr. Robert Stantini as Maurico, did good work with a very-clear and not get "cranky" accurate tenor voice, which sustained itself well throughout "with not a single flat note," as a musical expert. mentioned to the BULLETIN reporter this morning. This fact alone is enough to cover any slight defects in the stage presence of the leading tenor, which might have otherwise been noticed.

Mr. Sylvian Langlois displayed a well-cultivated baritone voice and his acting, while of a quiet kind in the role assumed, was finished to a degree that excludes criticism.

Mr. Hamilton, the basso, is wellknown here and met many old friends in Honolulu upon his reappearance. He deserves praise chiefly for bringing us the first really good operatic combination, which has visited Honolulu in the past ten
